Once upon a time there was a little boy called Joshua and he lived in the Highlands of Scotland. It is very beautiful where Joshua lives, there are lots of mountains and in the winter there is lots of snow on the mountain tops.

Joshua's Nana lives not too far away and he visits her every Sunday. Nana has a white house and she also has a little white dog called Breagh who is very fluffy and loves to play with Joshua.

Nana has a very big garden and at the bottom of the garden there are lots of trees. Joshua and Breagh love to play in Nana's garden with balls, bikes and other toys.

One day Joshua and Breagh were playing in the garden when their ball went into the trees. Breagh ran after the ball but she did not come back. Joshua got worried and followed Breagh and when he came out on the other side he was in a place that he has never seen before. Looking round he saw Breagh. “Oh! There you are”, Joshua said. To his shock and surprise Breagh answered him: “Of course I am here and I have found our ball”.

The story of a little boy and his friend who discover a magical place whilst playing in Nana's garden.

This is a simple tale to read to children aged 3 to 5 years and makes an excellent first read.
